

Empathy Map

School-Parent Communication App

Target User: Parents of Students

1. What the user sees

- Environment: Disorganized WhatsApp groups with hundreds of unread messages
- Papers and report cards piling up at home
- Other stressed parents at school meetings
- Existing solutions: ClassDojo (in English), Google Classroom (complex)
- Social media ads for international educational apps

2. What they hear

- From others: "My son got another bad grade and I didn't even know!"
- "The school sent an SMS but I never received it"
- Teachers: "Please check your child's notebook daily"
- Media: "Parents need to be more involved in their children's education"
- Trends: Digitalization of education is the future

3. What they think and feel

- Emotions: Constant anxiety about missing important information
- Guilt about not being present enough in their child's education
- Frustration with the school's lack of transparency
- Motivation: "I want to be a good, involved and informed parent"
- Values: My child's education is my absolute priority
- Desire: Having easy and immediate access to school information

4. What they say and do

- Behavior: Checks phone multiple times daily for school messages
- Calls the school frequently to ask for information
- Checks child's backpack every evening for papers
- What they express: "I don't have time to go to school every day"
- "Why doesn't the school have a modern app like other services?"
- Asks other parents in WhatsApp group "Did anyone receive any new info"

5. Their pains

- What bothers them: Wasting time searching for scattered information
- Lack of real-time communication with teachers
- What they fear: That their child will fail due to lack of follow-up
- Missing an important school meeting or event
- Obstacles: Work schedule incompatible with school hours
- Frustrations: Lost SMS, forgotten papers, buried WhatsApp messages

6. Their gains

- What they want to achieve: Be instantly informed about grades and absences
- Communicate easily with teachers without disturbing them
- Desired benefits: Save time and reduce daily stress
- Have an overview of their child's progress
- What would make them happy: A simple app, in Arabic/French
- All school information centralized in one app
- Dream: "Being a connected and involved parent effortlessly"

This empathy map helps deeply understand parents' needs, frustrations, and aspirations, in order to design an application that truly meets their expectations.
